End User Case Study.

Company Background

Save the Children UK raises almost £200 million per year to help children all over the world lead better and safer lives. The organisation conducts charitable activities helping the most marginalised children from Afghanistan to the UK, and everywhere in between. Education, nourishment, healthcare, protection, and recovery from poverty are the major areas of focus for Save the Children UK's efforts.

Why were you looking for Managed IT services?

“ To manage our IT systems and to ensure they are up and running for all of our staff as it is a time consuming job, so to find a service provider that completely managed our data lifecycle, from backup to recovery and from live data to archival, was imperative. ”

What is your company environment like?

“ We have almost 20TB of data for Save the Children UK, spanning finance systems, communication, numerous databases, and applications. ”

Why did you choose Asigra?

“ An agentless enterprise software was required in order to deal with our vast amount of users and data. A concrete DR Policy is paramount to our business operations and no risks were going to be taken to achieve this. ”

What were your results?

“ We now have a solution that is tailored to our needs, requires minimal human intervention and is financially economical for our backup requirements. ”

How did you Recover Your Cool?

“Free up IT staff time and spread our resources into other areas that now require more attention.”
